THE SOUTHERN PROBLEM.

It is stated that the Louisiana and South Carolina problems will be fully cons dered in the cabinet meeting today, and it is hinted that a solution of the matter will be reached by Tuesday. After all, the whole matter is very simple. Let Mr. Hayes carry out his programme of withdrawing the federal troops, and a more peaceful transition from an anarchy to peace and good government has never been beheld. Neither Louisiana nor South Carolina are anxious for federal recognition. All they desire is to be left alone; all their anxiety is confined to the intent and expectation of inaugurating good government in place of the misrule that has so long held sway in these states. Under the present circumstances, federal recognition would be humiliating, and if the new president is not misled by partisanship he will see at once that non-interference is the true policy.

THE LOUISIANA BUSINESS.

Packard is a regular bulldozer. He refuses to give up to the inevitable. Stanley Matthews, one of Hayes's brothers-in-law, writes to Packard that it will be an exceedingly graceful thing for him to retire. This was an insult. Packard is a patriot, and he refuses to retire at the mandate of a brother-in-law of the government. He is inexorable. He will not surrender. No richer heritage, he remarks somewhat romantically, could he leave to his chilkren than the fact that his blood has been shed in the interest of usurpation. This is all very amusing. The poor creature will ask no better excuse than the withdrawal of the federal troops to retire from a position which is by no means inviting, even at the least

THE following is the vote in the ninth district as far as has been ascertained:

Bell's majority, 3?5.

THE plan for a new election in South Carolina and Louisiana has been abandoned even by those who propos d it. It was a poor project at best, and was merely intended to give the corrupt returning boards of those states a new lease of life and a new opportunity to swindle the people out of their victory. Governor Hampton says he would regard a proposition for a new election as an insult, and such it undoubtedly w uld be. The people have already chosen him as their governor, and any attempt to have them repeat their verdict at the ballot-box would be an outrage. It is an exceedingly hopeful sign that the proposition has met with little sympathy from either side.

IT is stated upon good authority that the federal troops will be withdrawn from Louisiana and South Carolina as soon as the senate adjourns. This will speedily settle the troubles in those states. Chamberlain, so far as is known, will quietly submit, but Packard seems determined to have a little fun.

THOSE colored people who believe that Mr. Hayes proposes to settle the indebtedness of the Freedman's bank may as well undeceive themselves. Contrary statements, as well as the talk of forty acres and a mule are mere "glittering generalities," so to speak.

THERE is surprise expressed in some quarters that Hayes didn't offer a cabinet position to Heney Ward Beecher, in order that he might be near Bill Evarts in case of trouble.

TYNER, after due deliberation, has concluded to accept the position of assistant postmaster general under Key. Salary is a conclusive argument in times like these.

IT would appear, after all, that Mr. Emory Speer's youthful enthusiasm didn't bring about much of a "reform" in the ninth district.

STANLEY MATTHEWS has been nominated by the republican caucus of the Ohio legislature as senator, in place of John Sherman, the tape-worm statesman.

IN a telegram published elsewhere, the Hon. B. H. Hill announces that he has decided to make no recommendations for office.

IT seems right hard that Fred Douglass should be made the peer of Boss Shepherd in the District of Columbia. But so it is.

THE most disgraceful thing in our politics is this Cameron business in Pennsylvania.

Now that Tyner has accepted, Sam Bard needn't be coquettish

MOUNTAIN MARAUDERS.

TRIAL OF SIX MEN CHARGED WITH M'INTYRE'S MURDER.

The Testimony Before Commissioner Buck—A Weak Case on the Part of the Government—Another Fiasco Probable.

The murder of Lieutenant McIntyre in the mountains of Fannin, on the 10th ultimo, has not yet passed from the public mind. The government has not ceased its efforts to bring to justice the parties engaged in that dastardly piece of work. After the fiasco of the Holts who were recently released and sent on their way rejoicing, the marshals have had to seek another solution to the mystery. In pursuance of their search they fell upon a neighborhood party of men, whom they arrested and brought hither under the charge of conspiracy.

THE PARTIES

included in the warrant sworn out by one W. L. Goodwin, a deputy marshal, are John Davenport, Elijah Johnson Rufus Watson, William Foster, Tyree Higdon, John H Jones and Emeline Walker. These persons lived in the "Jones settlement" at Frog Mountain, where the fight occurred and were picked up as the parties most probably concerned in the affray. They were arrested and brought down here some two weeks ago and have since been awaiting their trial. The men are inoffensive looking mountaineers, by no means having the air or manners of persons who would wilfully engage in a massacre. They took their arrests cooly and relying upon the certainty of their ability to prove themselves clear, have shown no signs of fear or weakness.

THE CHARGES.

The warrant under which these parties were brought before the commissioner contained three counts against the defendants, as follows:

The first count charges that on the 10th of February, last, the parties named, with other evil disposed persons did unlawfully and feloniously conspire by various conversation and intimidation to injure in his person an officer of the United States, in attempting to execute a warrant against Ayer Jones, sworn out on the 10th inst at the special request of one of the bailiffs.

The second count is a charge of conspiracy, on account of their office, against one Geo. W. Ware a deputy collector of revenue under A. B Clark, collector of the second district The charge was conspiracy against said Ware.

The third count charges defendants with the killing of Lieutenant McIntyre, while in the discharge of his duties, assisting the deputy marshals was commenced upon the preliminary issues yesterday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, before Commissioner Buck. The United States were represented by Colonel Thomas, assistant United States district attorney; the defense by General Gartrell, Colonel A Johnson and Colonel W. T. Day.

At the outset arose a question as to the right of the parties to sever and become witnesses, one for another. The commissioner, without hearing argument, decided that the parties could do neither the one nor the other The woman, Mrs Walker, was discharged from the accusation and sworn as a witness for the government. All the witnesses were put under the rule.

THE TESTIMONY.

The government introduced witnesses, and the remainder of the evening was taken up in hearing their testimony. W L Goodwin, deputy marshal George W Ware the deputy collector, Corporal Calloway, a sergeant who was with Lieutenant McIntyre when killed, and Mrs. Emeline Walker, were examined and their testimony taken down at length. The examination was continued to 8:30 a. m. to-day.

So far as the evidence taken yesterday was concerned, it was manifest that no connection was made of these parties with the killing, and it is believed that this is but another Holt case.

The testimony with the decision of the commissioner, will appear in to-morrow's issue.

THE PEOPLE AND POLITICIANS.

—General Toombs is going to Washington City at an early date.

—Ben Hill's telegram yesterday struck a dozen or two men in town right in the bend of the knees.

—The northern press contemplate the nomination of Herschel V. Johnson to the United States supreme bench with much favor.

—The New York Graphic says: "There is nothing more dreadful than the anguish which the World and Sun suffer because Hayes has not appointed a negro member of his cabinet. It is understood that Tilden would have appointed 'Old Si' secretary of state."

—Nearly all the members of the legislature want to be sent to the constitutional convention. Let us pray!

—Congressman Blount thinks that Hayes is sincere in his southern policy, and will carry it out.

—There is promise that the younger politicians and statesmen are to be bulldozed in the convention race.

—The Atlanta girls are anxious to borrow a few days from Lent and start the dancing next week.

—The Kennebec Bloody Shirt says Marshal Smyth has gone to Washington "to say a word upon the policy of turning out honest rads, to make room for the more worthle s rebs that are flocking to the capitol."

—Jesse Jackson has gone to see Hayes. Jesse wants to be governor of Arizona Thus far, Arizona hasn't been heard from as yet.

—The K. B. S. also reports that Mr. Healy is liable to get his hair lifted, as there are already three Sioux after him —John Gray, one of the livest broadhorn railroad agents from Texas, was in the city yesterday.

—Court week in DeKalb will be the next divertisement of Atlanta lawyers. It begins on Monday, —After abusing the republicans for eleven years because of their policy of putting carpet-baggers and aliens in office over us, we are now to refuse place under the republican Hayes.

—We received a pleasant call last evening from Mr Earlie L. Jennings, the general traveling agent of the Augusta Constitutionalist. Mr Jennings not only represents a good paper, but is a most agreeable and clever gentleman.

AFTER THE SILVER.

Three Negroes Committed for Stealing Over One Hundred Dollars in Silver Coin.

On the fifth of February last, Mr. Hoffman, a worthy barber, was robbed of $102 56 cents in silver coin, which he had honestly accumulated by his labor. In the lot of silver were many foreign coin, and several pieces that he had carried for some time in his pocket Policeman J. R Mehaffey suspected the parties arrested and finally worked up he case against them. Only $8 75 cents of the coin was found, but Mr. Hoffman identified several Spanish coins as his property.

John Whitfield, Phillis Whitfield and Amelia Bobinson, colored, were arrested and had a preliminary hearing before Justice Butt yesterday and were committed to jail to answer the charge.

BALLET GIRLS IN RIP VAN WINKLE.

How Joe Jefferson Was Scandalized by the "Black Crook" Beauties.

Celia Logan in the New York Dispatch.

Many things frequently occur on the stage which are amusing to the actors, but are unseen by the audience. Joe Jefferson relates that once, when playing in "Rip Van Winkle," he had great difficulty in refraining from laughing outright.

It was in the scene where he meets Hendrick Hudson and his crew in the Catskill mountains.

The specters wear gigantic green masks, and on this occasion one of the faces was turned awry, giving it a ludicrous appearance, which set the others laughing.

To see their whole bodies shaking with laughter while their faces remained solemn and immovable, Mr. Jefferson describes as ludicrous in the extreme.

When "these our actors" want a dress rehearsal in a part before they venture to perform it to a metropolitan audience they usually go over to Newark, N J., engage a hall, and play it. This they call "trying it on a dog;" but what the poor Newarkians have done that theatrical poison should be thus thrown to them it is difficult to understand

It is true it is near New York, but so is Jersey City, and it is not punished in this way. It is popularly supposed that if a play does not succeed in poor Newark it is of no use trying it elsewhere. At the same time they get the cream of our stars.

Joe Jefferson was billed there for one night, and crossing over to rehearsal in the morning he asked his son, who was then his business manager, if he had any ballet girls for "Rip Van Winkle." The young man had forgotten that they were needed, but promised to get three or four by night. They are wanted in the last act to push Rip about, and to laugh at him when he comes back after his long sleep.

They should be dressed in the plain, home-like style of that primitive period. Young Jefferson rushed off and engaged several "Black Crook" girls, who knew nothing of the stage but that which they had been required to do at Niblo's. When they made their appearance in Newark, Jefferson was simply horror-struck—aghast—to behold the ballet girls in pink fleshings, wings, wands, and simply a tarleton fringe around the waist. To make it worse they were all in those fairy like attitudes peculiar to the "Black Crook."

"Go off," he said in low, agonizing tones; "go off, do."

Not understanding why they were thus summarily dismissed they determined to make the most of their short-lived opportunity, and danced and pirouted, and thew their toes over his head until he was nearly frantic. At last he drove them off.

This being the secret history of the case, it has always struck me as being unjust in the Newarkians to mutter among themselves at Mr. Jefferson's making senseless and disgusting innovations when he played in their city.

The New Babcock of the White House

Dayton Journal.

General Corbin has a "record," and one extremely creditable to him. He entered the service of his country during the rebellion at the age of seventeen as second lieutenant of the seventy-ninth O. V. I. In 1864 he had reached the grade of colonel of the fourteenth United States colored volunteers, which promotion was given him for gallant and meritorious services. After the battle of Nashville he was breveted brigadier, and afterward major general "for gallant and meritorious services." After the war he was appointed a captain of the twenty-fourth United States infantry, and was ordered to the frontiers of Texas, where he remained on duty during ten or eleven years. Last fall he was ordered to the Columbus (Ohio) barracks on recruiting service for two years, but a few days afterward was speedily detailed on account of his experience and the good reputation for prudence he had established, to service in South Carolina. After the election he returned to his post at Columbus, and was invited by Governor Hayes to accompany him to Washington, where, at the request of the president, he was detailed to his present position, without solicitation by himself or that of any of his friends. This, we take it, is a pretty fair record for a man in his thirty-fourth year. No officer of his rank stands better in army circles.

Old Dick Thompson's Style.

Old Dick Thompson, of Indiana, is the "old man eloquent" of the state. He is a chivalrous and handsome, white-headed and bright-eyed old gentleman, with a tendency to develop sudden intensities. He is like a reminiscence of Henry Clay. Though he has been quite prominent in the politics of his state, it is difficult to understand why he has not had the leadership in his own hands. The secret may perhaps be found in the extraordinary activity and will-power of Senator Morton. Mr. Thompson was, we have understood, the author of the fearful and wonderful republican platform adopted in Indiana last year. It will be remembered as a monumental mass of alarming rhetoric. His latest effort is a volume published by Harper & Brothers on the political history of the church of Rome. We think nothing in saying that this work was not intended to promote the spread of the Catholic power in the United States. Mr. Thompson's familiarity with the Wabash is a pleasant preparation for chieftainship of our awful armament that floats on the sounding seas.—Cincinnati Commercial (republican).

THE REAL WEIGHT ON THE OLD MAN'S MIND.

The New Election Scheme Abandoned—Wade Hampton Declares It an Insult—Inviting Packard to Step Down—The End Certainly Near.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Col. Lewis and Counselor Chester (colored), quite prominent in Louisiana politics, are at the white house, waiting an interview with the president. Their idea, gathered from their lobby conversation, seems to be that under the administration policy they are safe in their political and personal rights. They would prefer that Packard, and those on his ticket throughout the state, should be sustained, but are willing to yield to a course of events which the pressure of public opinion demands.

Stanley Matthews writes Packard February 27th: "As soon as the existing military orders are withdrawn the Nicholls government will become the only existing government and will have to be recognized then as such. In the meantime it will be the duty of the administration to take care that the results shall not imperil the rights and equity of the colored people of Louisiana so far as it has lawful power to prevent, and also to take care that stanch republicans like yourself, against whom nothing disreputable can be alleged, should not suffer, and should receive consideration and position in some appropriate way."

Packard replies March 14, concluding as follows: "Though the effort cost my life, still that devotion would be a better heritage to my children than the plaudits of the white league of the state, when gained by a surrender of both manhood and duty. I am the governor, and no armed force or violence can give my competitor a lawful title."

The Baltimore American says: "The scheme of holding new elections for governors and legislatures in Louisiana and South Carolina appears to have now fallen through. President Hayes has no authority to order anything of the kind, and there are very serious obstacles to its being mutually agreed upon by both political parties."

The new election scheme is abandoned by all parties this morning.

The best opinion is hardening that Packard and Chamberlain must yield to the pressure.

There are signs of impatience and irritation in administration circles at feeble attempts to thwart the southern policy.

No doubt of an extra session.

A telegram from Gov. Hampton was laid before the president to-day, stating that he would regard the new election project of Senator Patterson as an insult, and that he does not ask the president to recognize him; all that he wishes is that the troops be withdrawn from the state, in order that the will of the people may be carried out, and that peaceably.

NEW YORK, March 15.—The Washington specials say it has been determined to withdraw the troops from the state house in New Orleans and Columbia as soon as the senate adjourns The president has the most positive assurances from the conservatives in both states that no outbreak of any kind shall occur, and that the rights of all citizens shall be respected and protected.

THE WRECKERS' REVELS

RUINOUS WORK OF THE BOND-SHARKS IN ENGLAND.

A Crisis Reached in the Sale of American Railway Securities—The Officers Hiding The True State of Affairs—Alabama Bonds in New York.

LONDON, March 10.—The Times in its financial article says railway securities are occupying public attention more than ever before. Suspicion extends more or less to every railway in the union, sound or unsound. Inquiry shows their finances to be a sealed book. Something beyond arrays of figures, without any kind of guarantee of correctness is required to allay the anxiety awakened by recent events.

This feeling is intensified by the presence in this and the American markets of a considerable clique of wreckers constantly watching an opportunity to run down particular stocks. At present some of these are very busy with the Pennsylvania railroad. Statements of the most sinister character are circulated, and gain credence because the bondholders have no means of knowing whether they are true or false.

If the thirty-eight railway companies themselves do not call their managers and agents to put their affairs before their mortgagees and creditors in the clearest light, there will be an end to American railway credit here for many days Hitherto it has been the fashion to keep silent when matters went wrong, but that may become impossible if disaster follows disaster as they have been doing Bragg, now in this city of the committee appointed by the Montgomery, Alabama, common council to adjust outstanding claims against the city by holders of city bonds issued in 1870 to the amount of five hundred thousand dollars in aid of the South and North Alabama railroad has received signatures of holders of nearly $250,000 of bonds to the settlement proposed. Most of them reside in New York, and he hopes to adjust the whole matter amicably. New bonds redeemable in thirty years are to be issued with past due coupons, and included interest to be paid at 3 per cent for the first five years, 4 per cent for the second five years and 5 per cent for the remaining twenty years.

DEATH OF MADAME LE VERT.

Some Account of a Distinguished Southern Woman.

From the Augusta Chronicle and Sentinel, 13th

Madame Octavia Walton Le Vert, the distinguished authoress, died yesterday in Summerville of pneumonia. Her funeral will take place to-day at 3 o'clock.

Madame Le Vert was born at Bellevue, near this city, 1811. Her father, Colonel George Walton, (son of the signer of the declaration of independence of the same name) removed to Pensacola. Florida, in her childhood, (1821) having been appointed territorial secretary of Florida under General Jackson as governor. On the retirement of General Jackson from that office Mr. Walton acted for a time as governor. Although his daughter's education was exclusively domestic and confined to Pensacola, she not only became a proficient in the French, Spanish and Italian languages, but obtained some knowledge of Latin and Greek, as well as of the sciences. At very early age she was often called upon by her father to translate documents from the French and Spanish languages, which were then spoken by most of the inhabitants of Florida. She was invited, while yet a girl, to select a name for the future capital of Florida, and chose the musical Seminole word Tallahassee. In 1832 she left Pensacola to spend the winter in Augusta. While travelling in a stage coach through what was then the wild region of Alabama, in company with her brother, she formed the acquaintance of a fellow-passenger, who proved to be Washington Irving. This acquaintance was the foundation of a friendship which continued throughout the remainder of Mr. Irving's life. Miss Walton spent the winter of 1833-34 in Washington, and during the debates upon the removal of the deposits, was in the habit of writing out reports of the principal speeches delivered at the capitol. These were so admirable, notwithstanding her youth, that it is said Mr. Clay, Mr. Webster, Mr. Calhoun, Mr. McDuffie and Mr. Prescott were all in the habit of calling, to read from her portfolio the reports of their own speeches. In 1838 she was married to Dr. Henry S. Le Vert a physician of Mobile In 1853-4, and again in 1855, Mrs. Le Vert traveled in Europe, and was received into the best circles of society in England and on the continent, and recorded her observations in the interesting volumes called "Souvenirs of Travel." The idea of this work was suggested to the authoress by M. De Lamartine. She was for some years a contributor to various English and American periodicals. She is understood to have prepared two works, "Souvenirs of Distinguished People" and "Souvenirs of the War," which have not yet been published. She rendered good service in behalf of the Mount Vernon association, and was noted for offices of charity during the civil war. She enjoyed a great reputation as an accomplished linguist, conversationalist and leader of society. Of late years Madame Le Vert has been residing with her daughter, Mrs. L. A. Reab, at Summerville.

THE BOY AND THE WATCH.

A Fable.

Once upon a time there lived, across the water, a great king, who kicked his little son into the sea because he spilled his tea.

The poor boy was rescued from drowning by a beautiful fairy, to whom, in his gratitude, he offered his services, and if need be his life.

And the fairy smiled and said he was a generous little soul; and she gave him a beautiful gold watch, studded with rubies and diamonds and sapphires, which she said she wanted him to keep for her sake and the sake of her aunt's sister, who had died many years ago, but warned him to keep it wound up, and never to part with it. So he loved the fairy and promised with his life to "keep the watch."

This nice little boy said he was his brother, and that his aunt's sisters were brothers and sisters to his aunt's sisters—that he was going the same way—and would like to have the watch. And the good little boy said, "No! This is my watch, and it was given me to keep."

And the nice little boy said, "I know it is yours, but I want it," then the good little boy said he "would not give up his watch," and became very angry, and boiled with rage; but afterward felt sorry for being so angry, and told the nice little fellow (who said he was his brother,) that if he thought he ought to have it, he would let him call in friends and see what they should say about it. And the nice little boy said, "well, let us call fifteen of our friends; you call seven and I will call eight, and they will decide who shall have the watch." And the poor child said "yes," and thought "what a good little boy am I." And all the friends met together and took the watch and looked at the two boys, and said: "This is a good little boy, but a tin watch will do for him."

Then they called him up and said: "Bubby, wouldn't you like a tin watch to play with?"

And Bubby cried and sucked his thumb and said he was so sorry he didn't keep his nice gold watch which his aunt's sister left him.

Then all the other boys laughed and went away singing "Aliunde."

Then he felt deserted and alone, and sought the good fairy who had given him the watch, but all that he could see was a shrouded form, weeping upon a tomb and bearing a torn scroll, on which he could dimly discern:

"Watch Watch!"

ON WINGS OF WIND.

CAREERING OF THE ENRAGED ZEPHYRS IN THE WIRE-GRASS REGION.

High Pranks—A Young Lady Lodged in a Peach Tree—A Clearing up in the Pathway of the Storm.

From the Thomasville Enterprise.

From the best information we can gather, there was a cyclone in a portion of this county last Thursday night The storm of wind, rain, thunder and lightning and hail was pretty general, but not severe enough to do any damage except in the neighborhood of Mr. Geo. Harrod, John A. Spairs and J. B. Mabry's places. The cyclone seems to have lowered just here and to have swept everything before it. The report we have is that all the places of the gentlemen named were wrecked, and almost every tree blown down, the fodder, stacked in the barnyards and fields, and oats blown away. Mr. Harrod was not killed as at first reported, but had one foot badly mashed. His wife had one leg very badly broken and the other fractured. Several other parties were slightly injured but these were the most serious that we have heard of. It is a very severe loss on these parties, but we learn that some of their neighbors have kindly sent their hands to aid them in repairing and rebuilding houses enough to shelter them until they can do better. We have heard also that considerable damage was done to timber between Ocklockonee and Pelham stations but have heard of no other damage.

Since writing the above we have learned the followed additional particulars in reference to the cyclone:

Its course was from a little south of west to a little north of east, and first struck John A. Spair's place, and then went from there to Mr. Harrod's, and from there to Mr. J. B. Mabry's; then it struck W. H. Culpepper's place and blew down all his outhouses and carried off all his fodder and oats; it went through P. B. Massey's place, but fortunately did not strike his houses. It then it struck Dr. Carson's place and demolished his ginhouse. The next place was Wm. McDonald's. All his outhouses were torn to pieces and his provisions were badly scattered. The next place struck was Mr. Crawford's. It looked as if his house had been lifted up, twisted out of shape, and dropped down right on Mr. C. and family. Mr. Crawford and wife were badly injured, and lost everything in the way of provisions. It here crossed the creek, and striking Mr. D. A. Horne's place, tore his ginhouse, crib and stables to pieces. It then struck Mrs. Kemp's, and blew down all her houses, except the dwelling house, and then struck Tom Duke's place and tore down all his out houses. Mr. Highsmith's place was next, and here the wind swept everything, all his houses were torn to pieces and it was wonderful how he and his family escaped with their lives, as every house was blown down and seemed to have been piled on top of each other. He and his whole family were buried under the debris, but none of them killed, though they were badly bruised up. At Mr. Harrod's a young girl sleeping in his house was blown out with the bed she was sleeping on and lodged in a peach tree some distance from the house, but not seriously hurt. Mr. Harrod's trunk and the clothing of himself and family were blown away and some money that he had in his trunk lost, pieces of his trunk were found several hundred yards from the house.

The cyclone swept everything clean in its track; pine stumps were torn out of the ground; cotton stalks all levelled with the ground, and even, in some places, the wiregrass torn up by the roots.

Our informant stated that one could form no idea of the immense amount of damage done without going to the scene of disaster. The fields in the track of the storm were so filled up with trees, etc, that but for help from their neighbors none of them could plough a furrow under a month.

We hope our citizens will do all in their power to aid these people in their distressed condition.

We learned that another cyclone passed above here near Pelham on the S. G. & Fla. railroad, and from a gentleman from Colquitt, we learn every house on the place of Hon. Jas. Vick, in that county, was blown down, also every panel of fence, and every tree, but fortunately injured no one. It also blew down the house of Thos. Griner and bruised his wife somewhat, though it is believed she is not seriously hurt; it blew down every house on John Jones' place aad wounded his wife pretty badly about the head. It is reported that the places of Rev. H. C. Tucker and Isaac Royals in Colquitt, and of Wm. and Joel Culpepper, in Mitchell county, were badly damaged.

TOM YOUNG.

A Sketch of Ohio's New Governor.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Governor Tom Young has been a very lucky chap, to say the least. Born in backwoods county in the old Keystone commonwealth, on arriving at the age of sixteen, and being opposed to the excitements and hard work of a mountain farm, he enlisted as a private soldier in the regular army, and soon found himself away out on the western plains, facing the gentle redskins Tom had faith in his star of destiny, and feeling sure that the future had lots of glory and renown in store for him, he eschewed whisky, tobacco and all the other footfalls so common to the poor soldier, and began storing his mind with useful information for the purpose of becoming a constant reader of the New York Ledger and Beadle's dime novels. Two terms—ten years—of hard service found Tom an educated, polished statesman, ready to become the original carpet-bagger of the nation, settling down at Youngstown, Ohio. This was just at the beginning of the recent "onpleasantness," which the gallant soldier didn't like, as he was a peace democrat of the strongest proclivities. Times were dull, the services of all educated soldiers were needed, and much against his natural inclinations Tom mustered into the glorious war for the union. coming out of the contest a hero of a hundred battles, and with the much coveted star of a brigadier ornamenting his shoulder. Of course Youngstown was now too small, and forthwith the hero came to Cincinnati as offering a better field for enterprise and adventure. All kinds of labor except that of carrying the hod were dull, and Tom, having only a short time before become a benedict, was forced to accept the the position of deputy city auditor. The republican party was then in the full zenith of its power, and our hero being one of its members, was sent to the legislature, where the many important measures he introduced at once stamped him as one of the foremost men of the state. While in the latter place, Tom grabbed for the office of recorder of Hamilton county, and got it. You bet. No sooner was he introduced into his place as recorder, that he struck out for a state senatorship, and got it. You bet.

Soon after this, the important information came to Tom's ears that the supervisorship of revenue for the southern district of Ohio was vacant. Tom struck out for, and got it. You bet.

All these things ending, it seemed that the martyr to the service of his country was about to be allowed to retire to his elegant home on the Colerain pike, there to pass the balance of his days in peace and plenty, when up comes the republican state convention of 1875, when Hayes, having played fast and loose with poor little "Fonsy" Taft, and the balance of the state feeling that the wrath of the Hamilton county members must be appeased, said: "Noyes, what do you want?" and Noyes, with one hand on his heart and the index finger of 'tother hand pointing over the way, said:

"Tom Young," and quicker than the shake of a sheep's tail, yes, of a whole flock of sheep, Tom was nominated lieutenant-governor of Ohio on the same ticket with Hayes, and, as it was a bad year for honest men, the twain were elected. Then the republicans nominated Hayes for president; he was elected like the man who kept tavern in Indiana, and on Black Friday, March 2, 1877, General Tom Young marches into the executive chamber at the state-house in Columbus and is sworn in as governor of Ohio, the third state in the union.

If our august governor does not capture the seat once occupied by Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln and other great men, four years hence, it will not be because he lacks the cheek to ask for it.

Who discounts luck after such a history as the above?

THE PRESIDENT'S PASTOR.

Mr. Hayes Gives Parson Newman the Cold Shoulder.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The new president not only has a new policy and a new cabinet, but if his first Sunday in office is a sign, he is going to change the administration preacher. Hayes and his family walked several squares to the Foundry Methodist church, not far from Newspaper row, and heard a sermon from the lips of Dr. Duncan, professor in the Randolph and Macon college, Virginia, under the control of the Methodist church, south. The conference of the Methodist church is now sitting at Alexandria, near Washington, and this preacher was only a visitor, but it is considered here as a terrible cut to "Major General" Newman, as Piatt calls the pastor of the church to which General Grant and his family was accustomed to go. General Grant, it will be remembered, sent Dr. Newman around the world to visit consulates at the government expense. The president's walking to church is spoken of as another innovation by old residents, and his receiving yesterday afternoon at the largest day reception ever held in Washington without gloves is regarded as almost grotesque in showing to what lengths republican simplicity, aided by western manners, can go. The cold, stiff bow of the silent man who has been there eight years was superceded by a genial smile and a "glad to see you," which put even the most cautious in a good humor with the new white house people.

Small-Pox Spread at a Masked Ball.

Albany Argus.

Masquerade parties in the first ward of West Troy have received a death blow. In Saturday's Argus allusion was made to be a supposed peculiar fever, which had almost assumed an epidemic form in Port Schuyler. Now it transpires that the disease is small-pox, which, in this instance, is supposed to have been disseminated at a private masquerade recently held at the residence of a family named Stanfield. It is believed, with good reason, that the hired costumes used on the occasion contained the germs of the contagion. In the house of the Stanfield family three persons are down with the disease, and in a house near by are four invalids from the same cause. Cards of warning have been attached to the doors of several houses, and a number of first ward victims to the unfortunate masquerade is placed at 39. Numerous persons from Troy and other places attended, and it is said several of the strangers are similarly afflicted. Although the disease first made its appearance among the masqueraders more than a week ago, the West Troy physicians either failed to discover or neglected to make known the true state of affairs until Saturday. None of the patients have died so far, although some of the cases are said to be very severe. In consequence of the fact that the lower part of West Troy has always heretofore enjoyed remarkable exemption from contagious diseases much alarm is manifested among the residents. Several of the victims are employees of Roy's woolen mill, and the factory is to be temporarily shut down as one means of checking the spread of the disease. The first ward district school is also to be closed for a similar reason. The future masked balls at Fort Schuyler will be few and far between.

THE creation of nine new cardinals will raise the number of members of the sacred college to sixty-six. At present it consists of six cardinal bishops—Patrizi (Dean), Amat di San Filippo e Sorso, di Pietro, Sacconi, Guidi, and Bilio; forty-three cardinal priests, and eight cardinal deacons, of fifty-seven in all. Sixtus V., in 1586, fixed the number of the cardinals at seventy, but there are generally vacancies. In 1860 there were sixty cardinals, in 1864 but fifty-nine; in November, 1867, the sacred college counted no more than fifty-two members. The two senior cardinal bishops owe their creations to Gregory XVI., who reigned from 1831 to 1846, immediately preceding Pius IX. The six senior cardinal priests were named by the same pontiff. They are the cardinals de Anglis, Vannicelli-Casoni, von Schwarzenberg, Carafa di Traetto, Asquini, and Riario Storza. All the other cardinals, including the deacons, have received their red hats at the hands of the present pope. Of the three English-speaking cardinals, Cardinal Cullen is eighteenth on the list of priests, between Archbishop Bonnechose of Rouen and Cardinal Hohenlohe. Archbishop McCloskey of New York comes thirty-sixth, immediately after Cardinal Ledochowski, and thirty-seventh is Archbishop Manning. The oldest cardinal on the list is the archbishop of Fermo (de Angelis), who was born on the 16th of April, 1792, twenty-seven days before the pope himself; only three others date from the eighteenth century. The youngest on the list is Cardinal Bonaparte, born on the 15th of November, 1828. His eminence is twentieth in order of precedence of the cardinal priests. When the new cardinals shall have been created the Italians in the sacred college will number forty-one, against twenty-five of all other nationalities.

—We have seen it stated in various papers throughout the country, that Agents for the sale of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders were authorized to refund the money to any person who should use them and not be satisfied with the result. We doubted this at first, but the proprietor authorizes us to say that it is true.

The Atlanta Daily Constitution

FRIDAY, MORNING MARCH 16, 1877

NEW HAMPSHIRE AND THE NEXT CONGRESS.

The election in New Hampshire did not attract much attention. The people are utterly tired of politics. In the state itself the office-holders were the only persons who were enthused, and they had nearly everything their own way. The balance of power in the little mountain state has long had the reputation of being peculiarly susceptible to corrupt influences about election time, and the result of the late election is not therefore surprising. The Dutch have simply taken Holland. The majorities of last November are repeated, because the democrats did not seriously contest the state.

But the victory is not a Hayes triumph. The following resolution was adopted at mass meetings held in Concord and Manchester, and, it is said generally throughout the state:

Resolved, That in the minds of New Hampshire republicans it is right and just that the republicans of Louisiana and South Carolina who have stood shoulder to shoulder with us in the recent contest, and who have at a terrible sacrifice of both property and life, carried the states for Hayes and Wheeler and elected republican state governments, should be sustained by the whole moral and physical force of the national government; and that we are opposed to any and all compromises which may in any manner surrender those state governments, lawfully elected by the republicans, to the southern democracy.

This action was taken after the new southern policy of Mr. Hayes had been put before the country, and is therefore an endorsement of the extreme radical wing of the perplexed republican party. It is well to bear these facts in mind during this so called formative period of parties and policies.

The republicans elected two of the three congressmen that the state is entitled to—a gain of one. Mr. Frank Jones, the present democratic member from the first district, was re-elected, although his district gave Hayes and Wheeler a majority of 784. Mr. Jones' opponent was Gen. Gilman Marston, one of the ablest lawyers in the state, and a man with a bouncing war record. The chief obstacle in the way of Mr. Jones' re-election proved to be however his vote in favor of the electoral commission bill; and it took all of Speaker Randall's eloquence and force to satisfy the voters that his colleague's course was justified by the circumstances of the case. But sometimes when he asked an audience whether it would have Hayes or War, the answer would come back in a swelling chorus, "WAR".

The New Hampshire election, with that in our own Ninth district, completes the forty-fifth congress. Mr. Adams, the clerk of the house, is still unable to say just how the next house will stand, because nearly fifty certificates have not been received. He expects that all the certificates of democrats will be sent in this month however. No roll has of course been made, but conceding every doubtful case to the republicans it is known that the democratic majority will not fall below four. The majority at the opening of the house will be larger, as members whose seats are contested on double returns will be excluded altogether at the organization under a precedent established by Clerk McPherson. In all other cases, when a clear right cannot be shown, a right to participate in the opening proceedings will also be denied.

It is pretty well settled that there must be an extra session between this time and the end of the fiscal year. The political prophets differ as to when it will be called, and we prefer to accept the statement of Judge Luttrell, a member from California. At Chicago, en route to his home, he stated that he had received a positive assurance from the president, before leaving Washington, that it would be called tor from the first to the fifteenth of May. Combinations for the speakership and other house offices are now in order; but it seems to be well settled that civil-service reform will be applied, and that Mr. Randall will surely succeed himself.

Before dismissing the New Hampshire election, we desire to call the attention of our readers to one of the twelve constitutional amendments that were voted upon in that state and probably adopted. It is this: in cases involving less than $100 (where the title to real estate is not concerned) parties, as a constitutional right, shall not be entitled to a trial by jury.

THE CAPITAL QUESTION.

One of the main objects of a few—a very few—of those who favor a convention seems to be the removal of the capital from Atlanta to Milledgeville. The most prominent, perhaps, among those who favor a removal is the editor of the Thomasville Enterprise, and we append herewith a few of the arguments which he has seen proper to advance. In a recent issue of his paper the editor says:

We find that our people are very much exercised over whether or not we shall have a convention to make a convention to make a new constitution. We are not in favor of a convention simply for the purpose of showing that we can do such a thing if we see fit, but we are in favor of a convention provided certain things can be done. The most important thing is the removal of the capital. We like Atlanta, and have nothing against that thriving city, which is an honor to the state, but the only hope we can see of saving the expense of a convention will be to move back to Milledgeville. The capitol building in Atlanta is in such a condition that either the seat of government must be moved, or new building put up in Atlanta at an expense of from one to millions of dollars. It behooves us therefore to select men pledged to removal to Milledgeville, or to vote "no convention." The other changes are of minor importance compared with this, though there are many good things a convention might do; but we have little hope of seeing many changes effected, and therefore we urge this most particular one as the most important for the people of the state.

It will be observed that this is quite an argument. "The only hope we can see of saving the expense of a convention," exclaims this economical editor, "will be to move [the capital] back to Milledgeville." Whereupon he announces in favor of a convention! If it were not presumptuous in us to face such remarkable logic, we might ask just here how the expenses of a convention can be saved by the removal of the capital, when, as matters stand, the capital can only be removed by a convention. This would seem to be a conclusive argument, but it is not all. In a later issue the editor of the Enterprise says in respect to a convention:

But we advise our readers to vote for a convention and thus get rid of this question which has been a great expense to them, and at the same time, if possible, secure the removal of the capitol back to Milledgeville as a measure of economy, for if it is not moved a new capitol building will soon have to be put up at an expense, little if any, short of two or more millions.

The capital is to be removed as a measure of economy! Economy is a very thin cloak in this instance. There is no necessity for a new capitol building during the next decade. The present building, in spite of everything that has been said in the newspapers, is safe and commodious, and, with the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, can be made as comfortable as any capitol of any southern state. During the recent session of the general assembly the talk about the safety of the capitol was the result of a joke on the part of a few facetious members who were fearful that during the days when the senatorial election was pending, the galleries might be crowded with the friends of Mr. Hill, whose enthusiasm might be infectious. This is the whole truth of the matter. The "opera house," as it is called, is not as unsafe as a few of the newspapers pretend to believe. That it could be improved by the expenditure of a few thousand dollars is unquestionable, but how much would it require to place the building in Milledgeville in order? And after it is placed in order, would it accommodate the government? Are there apartments provided for the educational bureau, the agricultural bureau, the geological bureau, and the medical bureau? In addition to these are there apartments for the secretary of state, the treasurer and the comptroller? Last, but not least, will the old capitol at Milledgeville, as it now stands, accommodate comfortably the present general assembly of Georgia? We are of the opinion that it will not. As to the other departments of the government, we know that they would be compelled to rent office-room in the different stores around the little village, or suspend work until, at great expense, new additions could be made to the old capitol buildings. Economy is a pretty argument to use in this connection. Would it be economy to take the capital back to Milledgeville, and thus render necessary the expenditure of at least fifty thousand dollars in making new additions to the old capitol? The "opera house" (to use a provincial sarcasm) is ample for all the purposes of government It not only accommodates the legislature and the departments, but the state reaps a revenue from the rent that is paid by the United States for postoffice room. Atlanta holds a mortgage amounting to about eighty thousand dollars over the building, and if the capital is removed this will have to be satisfied; and yet the removers prate about "economy."

We insist that, with the expenditure of a few thousand dollars, there is no need of a new capitol for years to come. We insist, furthermore, that the removal of the capital will entail an expense upon the tax-payers wholly inadequate to the results to be reached and utterly inadequate. We make, therefore, this general summary: We admit that the present capitol needs improvements, both architectural and acoustic, but at the same time we maintain that the old buildings at Milledgeville will not accommodate the government of the state as it is now constituted—that the legislative halls are inadequate to the accomodation of the general assembly—and that the members could not find adequate and comfortable hotel accomodations. We maintain, furthermore, that so far as economy is concerned, it will be infinitely cheaper to allow the capital to remain where it is. It need not be imagined that Atlanta is afraid to meet this issue. We are in favor of a constitutional convention and so, we believe, is a majority of the voters of Fulton county. As General Toombs says, we desire the fundamental law of the state to represent the intelligence and the necessities of the citizens of the state; and so far as the capital question is concerned, we invite the fullest and freest discussion of the subject on the part of our contemporaries.

The northwestern papers are becoming alarmed at the natural tendency of immigrants to turn towards the south, and are pouring out the vilest slanders for the purpose of checking this manifestation. Hear the St. Louis Globe-Democrat:

The poor sand soil of several southern states barely affords subsistance to the ague-stricken whites who live upon it, while a larger portion of the land in all is owned by individuals who refuse to part with it on such terms as immigrants can afford to accept. The liberal state policy and the homestead law have, on the contrary, given even the poorest foreigner a chance in the west. Add to these reasons the debilitating influences of the climate, the loudly expressed contempt of the southern whites for "field hands," and the fact that in going at farm work in the south the foreigner is usually classed with the negro, and reasons enough are apparent why immigration to the south has not been more abundant.

With such slanderous statements in circulation, how can the south expect to secure a share of the stream of immigration that is constantly moving from the northeastern states, unless she takes steps to refute them? We must present the truth before we can expect to attract immigrants.

When the senate assembles after the 4th of March, 1879, there will be 52 senators who hold over, of whom 28 will be democrats, in any event, and 30 if the democratic contestants from Louisiana and South Carolina are admitted. That is, the senate will reassemble after March 4, 1879, with a democratic majority. That fact is fixed and irrevocable, and nothing but individual defection or a complete party reorganization can prevent it. Of the 24 new senators who enter then, the democrats are almost equally certain to have a majority, so that unless Hayes' new policy results in a party break-up, congress will be democratic in both branches two years from to-day.

We have received two articles—one from Buford and the other from Cumming—in relation to an article on Harrison Barker, who is now in the custody of the United States authorities. These letters defend Mr. Barker; but as the latter has spoken for himself through THE CONSTITUTION, the publication of further matter in his defense is clearly unnecessary. Mr. Barker's neighbors do not regard him as a bad man.

In the first batch of presidential appointments was the name of N. P. Clarke, who had been twelve years chief clerk of the Auburn, New York, post office, to be postmaster in that city in lieu of Mr. Richardson, who had held the place under Grant for eight years. This appointment was made without consulting the congressman from the Auburn district, and is claimed to be in the civil service line of promotion.

CHEEKY.—A Washington dispatch to the Cincinnati Gazette says that Judge Woods, of the United States circuit court, is a candidate for the vacancy upon the supreme bench. The president will please take notice that the hero of that railroad case which arose in Louisiana—that he is not, as the dispatch represents, a representative of the southern circuit. The southern circuit wants no such man appointed to high office.

SILVER is declining again. Three weeks ago it was worth in the London market 58¼ d. an ounce; now it is worth only 55⅝ d. Silver dollars are now worth about six per cent less than gold dollars. We hope silver will continue to fall until some of it comes down this way to take the place of the ragged and disgusting fractional notes that we are compelled to use.

CHAMBERLAIN'S organ, the Columbia Union-Herald, has caught the contagion that is in the air and collapsed. Its chief is also preparing to close up his business at the old stand. The suppression of the Columbia organ is doubtless a straw, which shows the way the wind is blowing in South Carolina.

The republicans have forty-five majority in the Pennsylvania legislature, and all of them but one wear Cameron rings in their noses. Young Cameron got 126 out of 127 votes in the caucus. Pennsylvania exists as a political body to advance the interests of the Cameron family.

We are to have an assistant president in the person of Mr. Wheeler. The office is a novel one, and so is Mr. Hayes' career.

FRIDAY last was the one hundred and eleventh birthday of Capt. Labrbush, the oldest man in New York. Until recently he has not looked to be more than seventy, but he is now rapidly failing. He was born when William Pitt was a boy of seven, when Frederick the Great ruled Prussia, and three years before the great Napoleon.

CARDINAL MANNING has given notice to his clergy that no music taken or adapted from the theater, the opera or concert, or which has become familiar through secular usage, shall be sung at masses or benediction or used as voluntaries or interludes, and that the music used shall be as congregational as possible. He has also banished ladies from his choirs so thoroughly that not a female voice is heard in any of the churches under his jurisdiction.

EUGENE HALE sees two birds in the bush which are worth pursuing especially as he has a bird in the hand worth almost as much as the other he has declined. Hannibal Hamlin has four years more to serve in the senate, and that he will be seventy-two years old, and hardly care for a re election. Hale hopes to stay in the house till Hamlin retires, and then succeed him. And, moreover, if Blaine should be chosen president in 1880, Hale would be on top of the heap. A lucky young man is Eugene, and men of senatorial dimensions are not plenty in Maine.

THE Duc d'Aumale has parted with his British residence at Twickenham for $225,000. It is to be made a pleasant out-of-town resort for the "gilded youth" of London. There will be garden parties, flower shows and balls there; and a stage coach is to be run daily between the club and Hatcher's house, Picadilly. The subscription is to be very small—only five guineas. The admission will be carefully checked and restricted to the elect.

WHEN they cry "Wolf!" in the government of Saratoff, Russia, it means something. During the last two years the wolves there have devoured, according to the official returns, 11,000 horses, 10,000 horned cattle, 30,000 sheep, 5,000 swine, 1,000 dogs and 18,000 fowls. They have also, during the same period, attacked sixty eight persons, devouring two on the spot, and inflicting fatal wounds on twelve others.

PRESIDENT HAYES said a good thing the other day to Miss Phoebe Cozzens, of St. Louis, who went up to the white house to pay her respects to him. Miss Cozzens is a lady who has studied law, and who differs from nearly all the ladies who have invaded the professions usually practiced by men, in being decidedly attractive in personal appearance. In the course of her conversation Miss Cozzens playfully referred to Gen. Grant's having talked of appointing her chief justice, and said that, had he done so, it would have been her duty to have administered the oath of office to him on Monday. President Hayes replied to her, "My dear Miss Cozzens, in that case I should have kissed something besides the book."

Key and Civil Service Reform

Special Dispatch to the Cincinnati Gazette.

WASHINITON, March 12.—Postmaster General Key had a talk with a South Carolina gentleman to-day, that republicans may take as an indication of what his methods are to be. The man appeared at the department with a petition for the appointment as postmaster at Columbia, S. C., very numerously signed by persons of prominence in various parts of the state. He was exceedingly aggressive, and evidently expected his papers would receive immediate attention and favored action. When Mr. Key obtained a chance to talk, he asked the man who held the office now?

"A colored man," was the reply, "who, of course, ought to be put out at once."

Mr. Key asked if he mismanaged the office.

The man said he had not heard anything about that. On being questioned more closely, he was obliged to admit that he had heard no complaints on the score of efficiency.

"Then," said Mr. Key, "there are only two ways in which he can be displaced without opposition from me. One is by the army of the United States, and the other is by an order from the president of the United States."

Mr. Key followed this with the statement that there would be no element of civil service reform in such a change as was urged, and there was no intention on his part to neglect putting the principles of that reform into practical operation.

—The avenues leading to an early grave have often opened by a cough or cold. Thousands have been cured and saved by Dr Bull's cough syrup.

—A radical change, no more swallowing medicines down into the stomach to go up to cure the lungs. This "new principle, new way," Dr. J. H. McLean's Cough and Lung Healing Globules. The globules dissolve in your mouth, a healing gas is generated, being inhaled, it will surely cure coughs, colds and consumption. Trial boxes 25 cents by mail. Dr. J. H. McLean, 314 Chestnut, St. Louis.

THE AMBITION OF PODUNK.

In Podunk, once, a fever raged
For generous education;
A heavy tax the money brought
For spreading information.

The school house built, the way seemed smooth;
All spoke congratu ation;
Three stories tall, with windows high,
None finer in the nation.

Alas! great grief! just then 'twas found
(O wide the consternation!)
For teachers not one cent was left,
And Podunk's education.

ROUNDABOUT IN GEORGIA.

—Douglass county doesn't hardly know whether she will go for a convention or not. It is to be hoped she will.

- Motto of the north Georgia revenue raiders—"Give us ar-rest."

—A bed of asbestos has been discovered in Douglass county. Asbestos is worth $50 a ton.

- Captain Irvin, of Harris county, aged sixty, killed five wild turkeys at one shot recently.

—An Augusta man has so far lost his pride as to write an ode to his mother-in-law. The poem is congratulatory.

—A Heard county huntsman killed four wild turkeys at one shot recently.

—The cold snap snapped up all the early vegetables in the neighborhood of Thomasville recently.

—A young man in Thomas county while out turkey hunting recently, saw the bushes shake and fired at what he supposed was a gobbler. He was much astonished to discover that he had slain a colored man.

—Mr. W. H. Beach, of Savannah, injured his hand so severely in his shingle mill the other day as to necessitate amputation.

—Mr. J. M. Smith, of Pike county, was seriously if not fatally injured recently by being thrown from a mule.

—Miss Luia Shockley, of Barnesville, was married recently by Mr. D L Jenkins, of Eatonton.

—Barnesville wants a choir in her churches.

—Col. E. P. Speer, of the Griffin News, writes: A beggar in Griffin who can show a foot that has run into one horrible toe, with a nail on it, has a fortune, but in Atlanta he would starve. We would pay any attention to attractions like this among the rare monsters who throng the gutters about the state house. How could a person stand a single toe against a three-legged woman with a hand organ, or a man with an eye in his cheek, or in the presence of another with three fingers at his elbow. The cripples hereabouts are all frauds, the truly gifted flourish elsewhere.

—Even the Savannah News seems disposed to deny that Herschel V. Johnson is a practicing physician. But in this case denials are useless. Herschel V. Johnson is a practicing physician.

—It is reported that two young men named Thompson killed a man named Mason in Butts county on Saturday.

—M. Francis Baring, a brother of Northbrook, of London, is in Columbus.

—They have Baptist candy-pullings in Columbus.

—A colored burglar has been captured in Thomasville.

—The hog cholera is raging in Houston county.

—Mr. John Flynn, of Floyd county, stabbed Mr. John Wimper seriously the other day.

—The Augusta Constitutionalist: We are pained to learn that our young friend, Mr. Pleasant A. Stovall, of the Chronicle and Sentinel, is at present seriously ill of pneumonia, at the residence of Mrs. Hardwick, in this city We, in common with a host of friends, sincerely hope, before many days, Mr. S. will be up and able to resume his labors.

—Douglassville Medium: A farmer in this county was taken ill in the month of June, last year, after the crop had been planted, and there was no one to carry on the farm but his wife. She undertook the work, and plowed and hoed the crop—making seven hundred and seventy pounds of lint cotton, thirteen wagon loads of corn, five hundred bundles of fodder, fifty bushels of potatoes, and forty gallons of sorghum. In the midst of the busy season she had to drive her husband to town for medical attention, and on her return home by accident she was badly bruised in her hips and thus badly disabled, she continued to work the farm, and remarked that at night she was so tired out with the labors of the day that she could not turn herself in bed. There were two children to be cared for and her husband completely disabled for a long time, and had to plow a "jinny" to make the crop.

A Result of Obstructed Digestion.

Among the hurtful consequences of obstructed digestion, is the impoverishment of the blood, and since a deteriorative condition of the vital fluid not only produces dangerous organic weakness but, according to the best medical authorities, sometimes causes asphyxia, it is apparent that to improve the quality of the blood by promoting digestion and assimilation, is a wise precaution. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is precisely the remedy for this purpose, since it stimulates the gastric juices, conquers those bilious and evacuative irregularities which interfere with the digestive processes, promotes assimilation of the food by the blood, and purifies as well as enriches it. The signs of improvement in health in consequence of using the Bitters are speedily apparent in an accession of vigor, a gain in bodily substance, and a regular and active performance of every physical function.

THE CHILD IN THE CASE.

CASE OF A YOUNG WOMAN WHO HAD AN OVERDRAUGHT OF MOTHER-IN-LAW.

A Mother Appeals to the Law for the Possession of Her Child Wrongfully Held by Her Worthless Husband's Mother.

On Wednesday there was argued before Judge R. H. Clark in the city court, one of the most interesting cases of habeas corpus it has ever been our duty to record.

A few days previous Mrs. Robert Garvan sued out a writ of habeas corpus demanding her mother-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth Garvan, to deliver her child, who was at that time withheld from its mother.

Mrs. Elizabeth Garvan responded through her attorneys, and the trial of the cause was set for Wednesday before Judge Clark.

At the appointed hour the mother was in the court room, and was represented by T P Westmoreland, Esq., and Judge Wright. The mother-in-law also appeared with the child, a bright eyed, rosy cheeked girl of about four summers Howard Van Epps, Esq., and J. B. Goodwin, Esq., represented the respondent. The trial of the case was begun and voluminous testimony introduced by both sides, from which it appeared that the following was the history of the case:

About five years ago the present Mrs. Robert Garvan lived in Murray county with her father, and passed the happy quiet life usually to the lot of the family of a Georgia farmer in moderate circumstances

While on a visit to Dalton she met Robert Garvan of this city, a man then about twenty-two years of age. She was very young—not more than eighteen perhaps—and was at once pleased by the manifold attentions of her superior in years and knowledge of the ways of the world. He wooed and won her, and she entrusted to him the realization of all a maiden's fond dreams and vague expectations

They were married, and soon afterwards Robert Garvan returned to Atlanta, bringing with him his young bride Here he pursued his occupation, tailoring, and for a while all was smooth and happy.

Soon after the birth of the child, it appears that the domestic peace was not so perfect as it had been before, and after becoming more and more ruffled, the climax was reached in an

of his wife by Robert Garvan. At that time she was living with her husband's family. After she had been alone some time however, she succeeded in obtaining a position as a tailoress, which paid her $5 a week—a sum amply sufficient for the support of herself and child. It appears that she performed every function of a true mother for her child, and cared well for its comfort.

Some time ago she determined to move away from the Garvan family and live alone with the child, who is now of sufficient age to afford considerable companionship.

However, when she announced her intention of removing to a new home and demanded her child, she was refused possession of the little girl by the mother-in-law, who said that it was her son's child and with her it should remain.

It appeared that the mother made entreaties and endeavors to obtain her child in vain, and finding all other means ineffectual She employed attorneys to procure what she deemed her most precious possessions and her's by a holy tie and an inviolable law.

Thus the issue was brought before the court, and there it was warmly contested on both sides.

The mother, a handsome young woman of about twenty-three, seemed wrapped up in the success of her cause, and watched the progress of the trial with an almost feverish interest. Her mother-in-law and other members of the family were also deeply interested, and seemed greatly attached to the little girl, who appeared happily unconscious of the then in progress all about her little self.

After the conclusion of the testimony each of the attorneys made strong appeals to the court in justification of the claims of their respective clients. Several fine points of law as to the relative rights of parents were discussed and the evidence fully descanted upon.

At the conclusion of the argument Judge Clark proceeded to announce his decision which was summed up in an order that the child be restored to its mother at once with her wardrobe and that the respondents pay the costs in the case.

The judge made a few very conciliatory remarks in which he counselled unbroken peace between the members of the family and advised that while the child was really the property of the mother, that she be allowed to live and pass her time at either house so as to restore that peace and good will so desirable in every Christian family.

AFFECTING SCENE.

When the decision was announced the mother seemed almost overcome with joy and took her child at once. She was congratulated by a number of gentlemen present, and she seemed profoundly grateful for her good fortune and the kind attentions shown her.

There was a movement among the men in the room who are accustomed to watch all legal proceedings with a lazy, indifferent interest, and they seemed no little exercised about something. Presently one of them handed the happy mother a purse of over $12, made up on the spot and asked her in the name of the crowd to accept it She took it with tears in her eyes, and thanked them warmly. She went away with the little thing toddling beside her and we wondered if Victoria had ever known as proud a moment of pure gladness as filled that woman's heart. And more than one man in the crowd felt like he had seen that which was worthy of his reverence.

THE HOLY LAND.

A GRAPHIC TALK ABOUT PALESTINE, BY REV. DR. BROADUS.

Biblical Geography Confirms the Bible.

The second Baptist church last night was filled with a large and intelligent audience, drawn thither by the well established reputation of Dr. Broadus, who was to lecture on Palestine, or the Holy Land.

The services were opened with prayer by Rev W. F. Cook, presiding elder of the Atlanta district. Mr Julius L. Brown then, in a neat speech, introduced Rev. Dr. Broadus to the audience.

Dr Broadus began by stating that he proposed giving a familiar talk. He urged the importance of maps in the improvement of our minds.

Parties going to Palestine go to Egypt and thence to Joppa on the coast. There is

and one is met by myriads of black boats, with occupants eager to carry you into the city. Joppa is beautiful when you are far enough off—"Distance lends enchantment," etc—the buildings of white limestone look well, but the city inside is filthy and disgusting. There are numerous orange groves around Joppa—over four hundred. You can purchase sweet and delicious, but they do not bear transportation. Jerusalem is forty miles distant. An American lady rode it on horseback in one day, but the next two or three days she did'nt ride any at all. At a convent twelve miles out the monks cook well. They do not charge anything, but you give them a donation which they specify.

SIX ORANGES FOR ONE CENT,

A range of hills passes through the center of Palestine. The Plain of Sharon is above the level of the Mediterranean while the

is below it. The Sea of Gallilee is 600 feet and the Dead Sea 1,300 feet below the level of the Mediterranean. The Jordan is a descending river. Passing on to he remarked that he would not attempt to describe it. He advised parties who intended to visit Jerusalem to read a good deal about it before they started, or stay there some time and read while there. The streets were filthy and the habits of the people disgusting. The people would show you the houses that Lazarus and Dives lived in, near by each other, and one about as good as the other. Jericho was four days' journey distant.

SOUTHERN PALESTINE.

The southern part of Palestine was desolate. The soil was washed away, and no tree or living thing could be seen, except here and there a wild flower springing up in the crevices of the rock. Nothing but hills of rock are to be seen

BETHLEHEM.

The exact spot where our Savior was born cannot be determined; yet the natives indicate the spot by a silver star and a Latin inscription. There is no doubt but that this is Bethlehem.

DAVID'S WELL.

As the speaker was riding up to the spot called Jacob's well, he discovered a crowd of Arabs around it, and one drawing water. The Arab ran up and cried out, "water." Dr Broadus advanced to the well and looked down it. The bottom was dry and filled up with rubbish. The Arab with the ingenuity of a Yankee had let the water down and drawn it up again. When taxed with his cunning, he laughed at it as a good joke. Nobody in this country knows how to lie or cheat! (Even a returning board might learn in Palestine)

The brook Kedron runs in deep ravine to the Dead sea. Six or seven miles from Jerusalem is a convent built in the sixth or seventh century. Parties must have a permit to enter. You knock at a low gate in the wall. A basket is let down from the wall in which you place your permit. When the basket is drawn up, the gate is opened, and you are led down step after steps, until you reach for you find people who do not partake of the present and all the surroundings belonging to the middle ages.

Miss Martineau applied for admittance, but was refused, as no woman is allowed to enter She revenged herself by writing that the monks were too holy to be hospitable.

THE WILDERNESS OF JUDEA.

The wilderness of Judea is a region of hills and deep ravines. The hills are composed of crumbling earth. Nothing meets the eye but a sprig of broom now and then. The only trace of life is the paths engineered by the goats in their search for the broom. It is remarkable how they engineer their way up the hill sides. It is a desolate, dreary, dead country, While riding, the Doctor saw only one thing, an eagle soaring lazily in the air. John the Baptist lived in this wilderness. It is expensive and dangerous to go to the southern end of the Dead sea or the eastern side.

There is a telegraph in Palestine.

MISTAKES CORRECTED.

The Doctor saw birds fly over the Dead sea. A man can sink in it. The apples of Sodom only existed in fancy. These stories were brought back by the crusaders, and can not be found in the Bible.

THE RIVER JORDAN.

The Jordan is 250 miles long, and counting the Dead sea, about 300 miles. Opposite Jericho it is said, is the spot where our Saviour was baptised. There are but few fords between the seas of Galilee. The doctor once crossed opposite Jericho when the stream was swollen and wonderfully swift. During Easter 8,000 pilgrims come to this point and rush in, men, women and children, and enjoy a sacred bath. While it is but 60 miles in a direct line between the sea of Galilee and the Dead sea, it is but about twice that distance by the river. The valley is from three to twelve miles wide. The river is fringed with green trees, and looks like an enormous serpent The doctor saw two perfect rainbows here.

ARABIC LOVE SONGS

While riding out the guide commenced to sing a mournful song. Upon enquiring the doctor ascertained that although a young man the guide had two wives, and wanted the third. He was practicing this song in order to win her affections. The Arabic love songs are in a minor key.

North of Mount Carmel is a broad plain—the plain of Jezreel—as and wonderfully fertile. The doctor saw wheat being cut on the 10th of April. A railroad could be run to the Jordan without grading a foot of earth.

THE SEA OF GALILEE.

The sea of Galilee—or more properly lake—is 12 miles long and 6½ miles wide. The town of Tiberas still stands. It has about 2,000 inhabitants. The king of Fleas hold court here. Magdela, Chorajian, Capernaum, and Bethsaida or their sites, are here.

BIBLICAL GEOGRAPHY.

It is no longer asserted that the facts mentioned in the Bible are not facts. The places have been identified.

Virginia lady, who became a doctor, wore a pistol, smoked cigars, and disbelieved in Christianity went to Palestine, saw the places and became a convert. The exact spot of Gethsemane is not definitely known, yet near enough. In an enclosure said to be the location of the garden there are olive trees from 500 or 1,000 years old The doctor and companions held a prayer meeting there one night.

The doctor stated that he would answer any questions propounded, and a number were asked him.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Will a narrow gauge railroad from Joppa to Jerusalem pay?

A—A yankee started stage coaches and abandoned it.

What is the architecture at Jerusalem?

Very little The houses are of stone, with flat stone roofs. The Mosque of St. Omar is faded. Any one can go inside of it now.

Did you see any Arab steeds?

There are none in Palestine. Is it safe to travel? Yes, the stars and stripes protect you. The government is bound to protect you

What fuel do they use? None to warm with. For cooking, stumps of olive trees, grass and weeds.

What of the Pool of Siloam? It is formed by an underground stream. The fountain of the virgin is above it. The women wash in the first, standing in the stream, and use the second for drinking water.

Do s the Jordan enter the sea of Galilee muddy and come out clear? No, sir.

Can Jacob's well be cleaned out? Yes. It is filled with rubbish.

What of the temple? Some of the wall can be seen above ground.

What becomes of the water of the Dead sea? It evaporates.

How are Turkish officials? A Turkish official visited us. He spoke French, and said that it was a dreary country—no theater, no opera.

He was a tax collector and had just collected from the Bedouins tax in camels, horses and sheep. One of the villages was sold to a Greek merchant. Tax is paid in kind, and crops can't be got out until the assessor sees it. The government is as bad as it can conviently be. The Turks would make it worse if they knew how

What is the population of Jerusalem? 8,000 Mohamedans, 5,000 Jews and 4,000 Christians of all stripes.

THE ROYAL LILY.

At Jacob's well he saw a lily of a dark violet velvet hue—the king's purple. Solomon was not arrayed like it.

A GRAND SPECTACLE.

One day while near the sea of Galilee they heard a storm coming up the valley, the lightnings playing in advance of it. It was dark and gloomy below, while above the sun was shining on the snow-clad summit of Mount Hermon.

The speaker was listened to with marked attention and all were pleased with his highly instructive lecture.

The doctor returns to Greenville, S. C., this evening.

THE MARSHALSHIP.

Rumored Appointment of Col. Alston To-Day.

It was stated freely upon the streets last night, upon the authority of Col. George B Chamberlain and Deputy Marshal Blacker, that a telegram received from Marshal Smythe, (who is in Washington) stated that Col. R. A. Alston, of this city, would be nominated by the president to-day as United States marshal for the district of Georgia.

SHOT IN THE HEAD,

Death of an Atlanta Man in Missouri.

The following communication which gives an account of the violent death of an Atlanta man in Clintonville, Missouri, was sent to Postmaster Conley, with a request that he hand it to some paper in the city.

CLINTONVILLE, MO., March 9.

To the postmaster at Atlanta, Ga.:

DEAR SIR: A young man calling himself Richard Turner, who said that his mother whose name is Nancy Turner, and that he had a brother in-law by the name of William Rhodes in the mercantile business, living in Atlanta, was killed in a street fight in the village of Clintonsville, Cedar county, Missouri, by a young man by the name of James McFarland, he, the said Turner, was shot through the head and lived only about twenty-four hours Any information that his friends may want they can get by addressing Abram Vanderebergt, Clintonville, Cedar county, Missouri.

There may be some of the relatives of this unfortunate man in the city who have not heard of his sad end.

Perhaps this young man like thousands of others went to the west to make his fortune.

Good State Credit.

We are gratified to learn that Treasurer Renfroe has concluded an arrangement with the Fourth National bank of New York by which the temporary loans required by the state during the year and in anticipation of the taxes, are made by that bank at the rate of six per cent per annum. This is the lowest rate at which the state has been able to obtain money since before the war, and it marks an era in the progress of our good old state towards prosperity, and is high evidence of the rebuilding of a credit and confidence of which her people may be justly proud.

D'GIVE'S.

Mr. John E. Owens To-night.

To-night Mr. John E. Owens will appear at DeGive's opera house in the new play of 'Our Boys," a brief notice of which we reprinted from the Savannah News yesterday. The same paper has this criticism of "The Rivals," which will be put upon our boards to-morrow night:

Sheridan's great comedy, "The Rivals." was presented at the theatre last evening to a very large and fashionable audience, and was received with the greatest enthusiasm. Mr. John E. Owens personated the character of "Bob Acres," and kept the house convulsed the entire time he was on the stage, particularly excelling in the duel scene. Mr. Owen's great talent as an actor, and his thorough appreciation of the character he assumes, together with the vim, earnestness and naturalness he brings into play, render his performances beyond the pale of criticism. He is simply irresistible, and the greetings he has received from large Savannah audiences the past two nights should be conclusive evidence of his immense popularity among the appreciative theatre-goers of this city. He was well supported, though some of the players were not entirely up in their parts and the prompter's services were called into requisition. We are glad to say, however, that this did not effect in any measurable degree the enjoyment of the play As "Mrs. Malaprop" Miss Ella Wren displayed most admirably her rare gifts as a comedienne She was easy, natural, knew her lines well, and personated the character to the life. Miss Minette Thompson, a most charming and attractive little lady, and agreeable actress, rendered "Lydia Languish" in the most acceptable style. This young lady has been on the stage not quite a year, and yet, notwithstanding her youth, has proven herself a most consumate actress, and is destined to become a great favorite Mr. Varry, as "Sir Anthony," was of course good, as he seldom essays a part in which he does not meet with success. We had the pleasure of seeing him, as well as Mr. Treville, who acted "Captain Absolute," frequently during the past summer in the theatres north and never found them lacking in the essential requirements. Mr. Norris as "Sir Lucius O'Trigger" increased the favorable opinion which he created on his first appearance here as "Talbot Champneys."

"Faulkland," by Mr. Barron, "David," by Mr. Marble, and "Fag," by Mr. Mitchell, were excellently given, whilst there was no particular fault to be found with the rendition of the other characters.

SUNSET COX.

He Will Lecture in Atlanta Next Friday Night.

For some time past the lecture committee of the Young Men's Library have been in correspondence with Hon. S. S. Cox, of New York, with a view of inducing him to deliver one of his rich lectures in Atlanta. Yesterday Mr. D. M. Bain, chairman of the committee, received the following telegram:

"Will lecture in Atlanta on Friday, 23d. Subject: 'Just Human.' Telegraph me if all is right. S S Cox"

Mr. Bain immediately sent the following reply.

Hon. S. S. Cox, M. C.
WASHINGTON CITY.

Your telegram received. Have made all arrangements for Friday, twenty-third instant.
D. M. BAIN,
Chairman Lecture Com., Y. M. L. A

The opera house will surely be filled with the most appreciative audience our community can furnish to hear the lecture of this distinguished orator.

Mr. Cox is said to possess rare influence over public assemblies, and the lecture he promises to deliver here can safely be predicted as a rare intellectual feast. It is understood that it is humorous in its character, and will doubtless strike a popular chord.

The library committee deserve the commendation of the community for their successful efforts to induce the presence in Atlanta of so famous a public speaker The public will respond by a most liberal patronage and a crowded house.
